Right to Information (RTI)

The Right to Information (RTI) is a fundamental legal right of citizens that allows them to seek, receive, and inspect information held by public authorities. In India, this right is governed by the Right to Information Act, 2005, which promotes transparency, accountability, and fairness in institutional administration.

In educational institutions, RTI plays an important role in ensuring transparency in matters related to admissions, fees, examinations, administration, and other institutional processes. The following has been prepared for Sinhgad College of Commerce (SCOC) in the same format as the uploaded reference document.
